

ReCHANCE – Rehabilitation approaches for providing former prisoners with personal development and society entry CHANCES

The ReCHANCE Project is working with former prisoners to offer training modules, resources and tools that will support them with their reintegration into society on personal, social, and professional levels. Since our last Newsletter and update, the project team has been working hard to develop the ReCHANCE Curriculum & Learning Toolbox that support adult learners to improve their personal development skills and foster their social re-entry into society. We have taken steps to digitise the learning content to increase the quality of adult education provision for this learner group, reducing access barriers and the associated stigma often faced by this learner group.

Piloting Activities across Europe

As we say goodbye to the summer, the project partners have been busy making plans for the piloting activities for the project. Taking on board all the valuable feedback we received at the transnational Staff Capacity Building workshop in June in Prague, we are now ready to test and pilot the digital tools and online platform with our two primary target groups. Each partner will engage with 15 ex-prisoners and their family members and 15 professionals working with ex-prisoners to train them using the ReCHANCE resources. The project partners are free to use a variety of methods to deliver the training. Some partners will enter directly into local prisons to engage with inmates and the staff working there; others will link in with community-based projects that are supporting the re-integration of ex-prisoners into society. We are embarking on the most interesting if not challenging phase of the project, so wish us luck and we promise to share our results at the project's final conference (see below for more details).

Adaptation Guide – sharing our insights!

Once the piloting activities have been completed, KNOW&CAN our Bulgarian Partner, will prepare specific guidelines for stakeholders and trainers on how to integrate the ReCHANCE tools into their training courses drawing on the experience, feedback, and knowledge of the project partners. The guide will be able for download on the project website by the end of this year - www.rechance-project.eu

Up Next: Save the Date – ReCHANCE Final Conference – 13th December in Prague

We are delighted to be able to share with you the date and location for the final conference for the ReCHANCE project. Organised by Romodrom this event will bring together key stakeholders across Europe to share the results of the ReCHANCE project and share our experiences with a wider audience.
